

Submitting an article or book review to American Studies Today and American Studies Today Online

ARTICLES

Articles for consideration should be sent as a Word attachment to the editors, Dr Bella Adams and David Forster, B.Adams@lmu.ac.uk. Before submitting the article for consideration, authors should send a 50-word abstract of the article to the editors. Authors should also provide details of their postal address and educational affiliation. Authors should ensure that they have taken the following guidelines into account when submitting an article:

Copyright

In order to ensure the widest dissemination and protection of material published, we normally ask authors to share the rights of copyright in the articles they contribute. We also ask authors to secure the necessary written permission from the appropriate copyright owner or authorities for the reproduction in the article of any text, illustration or other material.

Style

Our readership is wide and includes AS/A2 level, undergraduate and postgraduate students, teachers, academics and general readers. For this reason, we ask authors to ensure that the style of their article is accessible.

Content

We invite submissions on any aspect of American culture, including art, education, film, history, literature, the media, politics, religion and society.

Word Count

Articles in American Studies Today are usually 2,500 to 3,000 words and should not exceed 5000 words. Articles that exceed 5000 words may be published in the online version of our journal, American Studies Today Online, subject to an overall limit of 6,000 words.

Referencing

We would prefer authors to use the Harvard referencing system, but will accept submissions using the MLA system. Authors should ensure that their referencing system is consistent.

BOOK REVIEWS

We also welcome book reviews, and are happy to supply a list of current titles on request. Requests for books to review should be submitted to the reviews editors at astbookreviews@ljmu.ac.uk. The review should be between 300-600 words in length. Please include the book's author/editor, title, subtitle, publisher, year of publication, ISBN and number of pages, along with your name and educational affiliation.

Editing and Publication

If your article or review is accepted, we will prepare and publish it. We reserve the right to make editorial changes as necessary to make it suitable for publication. We also reserve the right to decide whether it appears in print or in the online version of our journal or both. American Studies Today is published annually in September. All contributors will be sent a print copy of American Studies Today. Finally, we would like to thank authors and reviewers for their submissions to American Studies Today and American Studies Online.

Revised 28 March 2013